EXPERIENCE

Sigmatech Inc.

October 2023-Present

Deputy Director of Digital Learning

Built and scaled the creative organization from a small production team into a 15+ person multidisciplinary team, expanding organizational capability across instructional design, video, animation, 3D, games, social media, digital experiences, and immersive technology to meet growing demand.

Established creative strategy and visual direction across a broad portfolio of digital learning and media initiatives, translating complex subject matter into compelling experiences while maintaining consistency, quality, and alignment across the organization's creative output.

Led the redesign and replacement of a legacy training platform, coordinating software developers, creative media, and subject-matter experts while personally researching and evaluating systems to improve cross-functional collaboration and project outcomes. Developed a scalable solution projected to reduce organizational costs by more than $1M and provide a more sustainable model for digital learning delivery. The resulting platform has since evolved beyond its original intended purpose into a specialized Sigmatech application supporting broader organizational needs.

Established and shaped the NSSI's social media capability, contributing directly to hiring, team development, creative direction, and the strategic tone of the organization's social presence. Built an environment that empowered team members to develop and pitch their own creative ideas to customers, strengthening team ownership and contributing to measurable channel growth. The NSSI's LinkedIn audience has grown to nearly 9,000 followers, with approximately 29-40 new followers gained each week.
